SECTION B: 50 MARKS

51. The composition below was written by Sulait Ssesanga of P.7 at Bubuule Primary School. He wrote it after his class had learnt about electronic media. Read it carefully and then answer, in full sentences, the questions that follow.

The word television comes from the Greek word "tele" which means distant and the Latin word "visio" which means vision. The television is one of the most wonderful inventions of modern science. It was invented by John Baird, a Scottish scientist in 1925.

After the Second World War (1939 - 1945), it had become very popular around the world. The television is an audio-visual instrument and excellent medium for mass education and recreation. Moreover, it is important for advertisement. We also enjoy drama, cinema, sports, quiz and many other important events.

The television puts before our eyes objects and persons thousands of kilometres away with their pictures, sounds and voices. Thus, it has brought the outer world into our living room. Unfortunately, it (TV) is still a costly thing and we hope that its price will come down soon, so that the common people can enjoy it.

However, the television has its dark sides too. It has made people unsocial to some extent. Guests feel embarrassed and unwelcome when they pay a visit to someone whose attention is on a programme on TV. Children are tempted to spend useful study hours watching TV programmes. The adult members of the family should be cautious of it. Otherwise, the future generation may become void of good morals as a result of television.

Questions:

- Who wrote the composition above?

- Which topic motivated the writer to compose the above text?

- From which two languages does the word television come?

- According to the passage, in which country was the television invented?

The place that brings us together
From different homes and communities
And then given a common name
A name known by most people as school children.

At the beginning, we are all strangers
We later turn into great friends
Sharing knowledge and developing talents
And in turn, we become the leaders of our nation.

We thank our teachers and prefects
Who mind about our conduct at school
And we enjoy acceptable discipline
The only tool that will build our community.

Jambo Jambo
